Restrictions return

MARIO PRUSINA
Times Editor

The Town of Strathmore is facing planned water restrictions beginning March 9, as the City of Calgary works on the reinforcement of a major water transmission pipe.

The town, which receives its potable water via Calgary, is asking for residents to manage supply and protect essential services.

Outdoor water use will be prohibited throughout the period of the shutdown and residents and businesses are also being asked to cut indoor water use.

In a statement on social media on March 1, Strathmore Mayor Pat Fule reminded residents of the water restrictions and that the water is piped from the Calgary water system.

"I was not on council when the East Waterline Project was approved, but I still agree that it was a sound decision, as Calgary does have the equipment, treatment ability, and highly trained staff to provide clean, safe water," said Fule. "It's just a shame that this feeder line did not last as long as it was supposed to last. The City of Calgary does believe that their replacement line will be done by the end of 2026."

Taking the feeder main offline means that Calgary and neighbouring communities must dramatically reduce water demand because the remaining Glenmore Water Treatment Plant will need to supply the majority of the region's water during this time.

The town urges residents to get into the habit of running the dishwasher or laundry with full loads. This helps reduce unnecessary water use without changing comfort or routine.

They also recommend to turn off taps and check your water meter - if the dial's moving, you've got a leak.

The restrictions apply to all residents and businesses in Calgary as well as regional customers served by the city's water system in Airdrie, Chestermere, Strathmore and the Tsuut'ina Nation.

Sherry Baers to continue as Wheatland County CAO

JOHN WATSON
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Wheatland County has announced that Sherry Baers will maintain her position as chief administrative officer for the foreseeable future in a full-time capacity.

Baers was appointed by the county to the role in the interim in November 2025 to replace Brian Henderson and ensure a smooth transition period while a candidate was sought.

Previously, she had served as the general manager of community and development services for the county and has been on staff for over six years.

"I am actually quite excited; I find I have really enjoyed working here at Wheatland (County). It is a good community, it is a good county to work in, the work relationships and the environment here is really good," said Baers. "I feel like I still have a lot to give and I am looking forward to supporting staff. They are all looking for stability as well, so I think we have a good team here."

She explained that holding the position as the interim CAO, her role was to keep the county running smoothly and consistently while council interviewed candidates.

Now, as she settles permanently into the role, she will be working with council to solidify the 2026 to 2029 strategic plan.

"Even though they may not want to see major changes, we will work on that and how it can spill down to help meet their strategic objectives and goals," said Baers. "I think this council - I am hearing pretty loud and clear that they want to improve communication out to ratepayers and to the public. We will work on those things but mostly working on how we can meet all of their strategic goals and objectives with transparency."

County Reeve Scott Klassen explained Baers stood out for the position particularly through her diverse professional background, as well as her history working with Wheatland County.

She was ultimately selected from over 75 applicants who had expressed interest in the position.

"It was not just an internal hire; we looked everywhere ... you assume your employees are really good, but you never know until you compare, especially with the CAO, with what the market is and what is out there," said Klassen. "There were a number of very qualified candidates; it was not an easy decision to get down to, but having an internal candidate is a good problem to have. It also gives them a leg up and almost like a long-term interview."

Prior to Baers, Henderson was also hired for his position as CAO after serving as the interim before his selection.

County considering viability of broadband expansion project

JOHN WATSON
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Wheatland County is considering potential expansion to broadband access for the communities of Carseland and Speargrass, though this may be at a notable extra cost to local ratepayers.

During the Feb. 17 meeting of council, county administration presented a report detailing what the expansion of fiber to home broadband could look like, as well as potential costs.

“For the county, we would have to look probably to pursuing something independently, similar to what we have done on our existing broadband project,” said Cory Adamson, general manager of corporate and financial services. “Our preliminary findings are that there might be a point of presence or an internet access point within the Carseland area, and so that could potentially support some sort of a broadband expansion there.”

Adamson explained according to administration’s initial high-level estimates, costs could equate to between $8,000 and $9,000 per door – or $3 million to encompass the entire project.

Considerations would eventually have to include the uptick in local customers who would join in on paying for access to the broadband; however, there would be operational deficits until it reached the threshold of being profitable. These deficits are estimated to be between $122,000 and $160,000 per year.

Network providers such as Xplore have previously applied for and have been approved for funding from the federal government to establish high speed internet access in remote areas; however, funding applications are generally intended to account for 50 megabits per second download, and 10 megabits per second upload speed infrastructure.

“The biggest concern that came out of (local surveys) was not so much the speed and was more around the reliability where wireless could be unreliable in, for instance, circumstances like (during adverse weather conditions),” said Adamson.

Among funding options presented in the report included the implementation of a local improvement tax, and a cost sharing agreement.

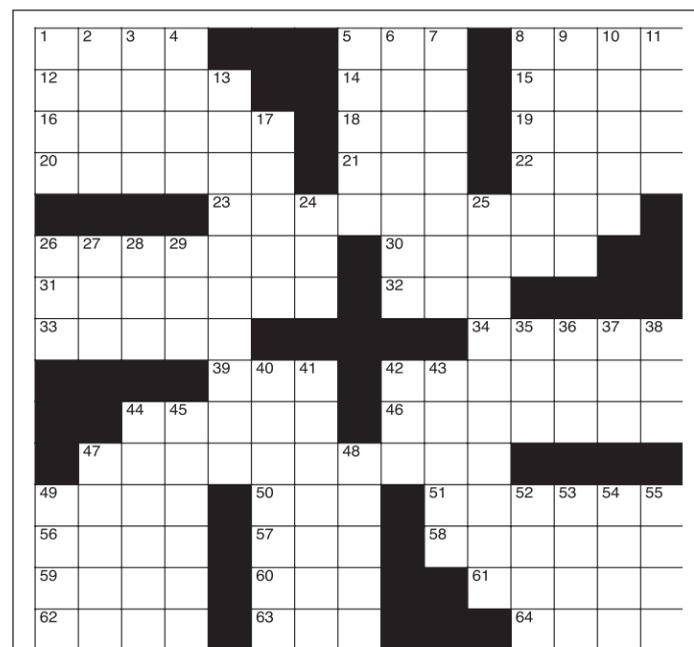

Another approach could be to try and entice a large third-party organization to invest in the area and make a broadband expansion project appealing to them to chip in on the infrastructure.

Coun. Berle Hebbes suggested council abandon the idea entirely, citing the previous survey as unreliable, and complaints from ratepayers being likely to spike during adverse weather due to localized malcontent. Coun. Rick Laursen agreed with Hebbes, citing that the county is not an internet service provider.

Coun. Donna Biggar expressed interest in launching a local interest survey to gauge desire within the division for the infrastructure, as well as how it may be paid for.

“This is something that (was) brought to my attention quite a bit over the election and so I need to know what interest is out there,” she said.

Council voted 5-2 in favour of conducting a local interest survey. Laursen and Hebbes voted against.

Art Hanson to take over as Sacred Heart Academy principal

JOHN WATSON
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Beginning in August, Sacred Heart Academy will see Art Hanson stepping in to replace Paulette Chotowetz as principal.

Chotowetz announced her retirement at the end of the current educational year in January after serving as an educator with Sacred Heart for 25 years.

Hanson, already a veteran of the local community, has been serving as vice principal of Holy Cross Collegiate for the last 17 years.

“It has been an amazing experience, but I am super excited and blessed for the opportunity to become principal at Sacred Heart Academy,” said Hanson. “My kids went through this – my two boys went through Sacred Heart; my wife taught there for 20 years as well, and I am blessed to begin that journey in August to help with the education and the faith component of our Catholic education.”

He added after seeing Chotowetz’s announcement of her retirement, he felt called to apply for the position and aim to take the next step in his own career.

Hanson described the move as “coming full circle,” having begun teaching elementary students over 20 years ago – moving to help educate junior and senior high students, and now returning to the K-6 environment.

“It is going to be hard to say goodbye, but the best part about it is that I am actually just going right next door. Our buildings are connected, I am still going to see the students in junior and senior high; I will still see staff in our wonderful faith-based community,” he said. “I feel like I know a lot of the community members already, so it is bittersweet. I am super excited and grateful for the opportunity, but it will be sad not walking through the Holy Cross doors for coming into work in August.”

Hanson explained he anticipates the first several months, if not the first year taking over from Chotowetz to be about listening and hearing what has made the school special so far, and forming relationships with the more immediate staff, stakeholders, students, and parents.

Additionally, he said the time will be about learning what needs to be done around the school to continue improving and making it an exemplary place of learning.

Hanson graduated with his Bachelor’s degree from the University of Alberta, then achieved his Master’s through Gonzaga University. He found his way into Strathmore in 2005.

“As a principal in Christ the Redeemer schools, I think my priority will still remain fostering a Christ-centered environment where every student feels safe, cared for, and loved,” he said. “I already know so many of these families, so I just want to continue to strengthen those ties and ensure parents feel like they are still true partners in their children’s education.”

Accessibility Strathmore aiming to raise awareness for local challenge

JOHN WATSON
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

A new not-for-profit organization has initiated operations in Strathmore, aiming to bring awareness to and work to help solve local accessibility problems.

Denise Geremia, who has co-chaired Accessibility Strathmore, explained the idea is to spearhead discussion towards increasing accessibility options around the town.

“When I was running for town council, I had three things that I was passionate about. At every meeting, I had more and more people coming to me, talking about some of the issues that Strathmore has regarding accessibility,” she said. “I announced even if I didn’t win, I still want to create something to start bringing some accessibility options to our town. I had reached out to Bev Bell and Denise Peterson ... and we started discussing leading accessibility options.”

The first meeting of the organization took place Feb. 23. Geremia explained she wants to see access to local facilities, programs, and services be dramatically improved for those living with both physical and psychological disabilities.

Currently, a Facebook page and email list are being utilized in order to distribute information and questionnaires targeting where residents would like to see accessibility improvements.

“One of the main things that we are hearing back is that there needs to be an accessible park for kids and anybody of any age who wants to go and have fun,” said Geremia. “We are researching grants we could apply for, and what education we need to bring into Strathmore.”

Knowing it is not a job that could take place overnight, the organization aims to influence improvements over the next several years throughout the town.

Geremia suggested Accessibility Strathmore may apply for a grant made available by the Rick Hansen Foundation in order to increase accessibilities within respective municipalities.

Currently, the organization is not a registered not-for-profit, nor a registered charity. None of the committee members are paid for their involvement, nor are they formally involved in municipal government.

“There are grants out there to even just put electric door openers at the front of businesses so that they become accessible ... some of the new spaces here in town are not accessible for physical disabilities and so we are hoping that we can put a fire under what needs to be changed and educate people,” said Geremia. “Everyone deserves the same rights and abilities to get to and from stores and community, like doctors’ offices and everything in town. There needs to be a lot of education ... out there.”

The next meeting of Accessibility Strathmore will take place April 13, upstairs at the Strathmore Co-op, which is elevator accessible. Meetings will aim to be held every six weeks.

Between meetings, Geremia has invited those interested in getting involved to contact her at 403-608-0686, denise-geremia@hotmail.com, or through the Accessibility Strathmore Facebook page.

Ed Anderson to showcase gallery at Strathmore Library

JOHN WATSON
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Throughout the month of March, the Strathmore Municipal Library will be showcasing works created by local artist, Ed Anderson.

Having been involved in creating for approximately the last 25 years, Anderson explained he was inspired to begin in his midlife by his mother, who had done the same before him.

“I mostly consider myself an animal portrait artist, and that includes wildlife and it includes domestic animals. The exhibition that I have set up at the library contains examples of African wildlife, American wildlife, and mostly domestic dogs,” he said. “I am a big fan of dog painting. My particular interest is in hunting dogs – so most of the dogs that I have in the exhibit are different kinds of hunting dogs, but I also have wildlife as well.”

Anderson added he began taking up painting with acrylics over a decade ago and has since switched his preferred medium to oils for their rich colours and slow drying times.

The gallery to be on display at the library will include 15 pieces. This collection, he noted, is a far cry from his first time exhibiting.

“I’ve displayed at a number of different galleries and had a number of different exhibitions over the years in addition to this particular display at the Strathmore Library,” he said. “For a couple of years now, I have had a semi-permanent display at the Vault Cultural Collective in Strathmore. The opportunity to exhibit at the library kind of came out of the work that I already had displayed at the Vault.”

Previously, Anderson’s work has appeared at an art show in Kansas, as well as online in the 2012 and 2014 Light Space and Time competitions.

In 2025, Anderson claimed a Best Animal Portrait award in the Portrait Society of Canada competition. The award-winning piece will be among those hosted at the Strathmore library.

“I definitely view (painting) as more than a hobby ... one of the things that drove me to retire a little early was the desire to paint more and to paint full time,” he said. “I am very passionate about painting. I love painting and I hope to continue painting as long as I can pick up a paintbrush.”

The gallery was officially made freely available to the public as of March 1 and will remain on display until the end of the month.

More information about Anderson and his work is available through the Vault Cultural Collective, as well as his website, ceandersonart.com.

Vitamin consumption is often thought to be free of any problems. But some vitamins can cause problems. Vitamin B6 (pyridoxine) is one of those. People taking this vitamin can experience peripheral neuropathy...a tingling, burning or numbness usually in the hands and feet. Health Canada has established a maximum daily limit of 100mg for vitamin B6 in health supplements.

Singing, especially in choirs, can develop a powerful sense of social cohesion as well as a number of physical benefits for the lungs and respiratory system. Singing has also been found to improve people's heart rate and blood pressure and even been found to boost one's immune function. Simply listening to music doesn't provide the same effects. Thinking of joining a choir? Do it. It's good for your health.

Nearly 20% of Canadians can't sleep well. There are many reasons why people have sleep problems. One of them may be chemical. Stimulants like caffeine in coffee, tea and cola drinks taken too close to bedtime can be problematical. Cold medications containing decongestants, excess thyroid medication can cause insomnia as well as some older antidepressants. Check with your doctor or pharmacist to see if your medications are causing sleep problems.

New local medical clinic opens doors to public

JOHN WATSON
 Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Country Plaza Medical Centre opened its doors to the public for the first time March 2, inviting the community to an open house for the new facility.

Dr. Ola Akinremi explained the process of getting the new medical centre up and running was full of uncertainties; however, with the support and eagerness of the Town of Strathmore behind them, he was excited to finally make the announcement of the facility's opening.

"When I moved from the UK and I was working in Calgary, we were thinking of doing something and we just felt we wanted something that would take us closer to the community," he said. "We were considering various communities, and we got to Strathmore and from Day 1 ... there was a lot of touring around to find a suitable location and making sure we were welcomed to the community."

Akinremi added the Town of Strathmore provided a $45,000 grant to the facility in order to aid in the capital challenges associated with opening a medical clinic.

Currently, the facility will be operating with two physicians on staff. There is already a waiting list for those aiming to inquire about becoming regular patients.

"We know that we definitely need a female clinician. It is not as if we cannot do women's health, but understandably, women like women dealing with some of those intimate examinations and treatments," said Akinremi. "We are hoping to get a female clinician very soon, and because we also want to hop on Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., then on Saturdays as well 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. so really, we need that so that we don't get burnout. We need more staff to be able to cover that period."

The facility features eight examination rooms, as well as an attached pharmacy which will be operating with the same hours as the clinic in order to maximize convenience to patients.

The clinic will also readily serve patients who have their regular family doctors elsewhere with the express intent of increasing convenience, should a patient's regular physician not be able to schedule them in when they need help.

"We are not taking them over from their doctors, we just treat them and we just tell them to say hello to their doctor when they get back to them," said Akinremi.

Mayor Pat Fule expressed his excitement at the development of greater access for community members to local medical services.

"We had heard from a longstanding doctor that there was a medical crisis in Strathmore with a shortage of general practitioners. When I was contacted by a few groups of doctors, I just jumped into action and tried to do my part to welcome them, to show them that Strathmore needs and wants them as doctors," he said. "We are thrilled that we could support them with a grant, and that helps in the startup of a new clinic with renovations, whatever else their needs might be as far as setting up."

Akinremi explained the clinic would be officially open to the public following Monday's open house as of Wednesday, March 4.

A cappella set to perform at Arts on 817

MELISSA PICHE
Times Contributor

Members of the adult a cappella ensemble ONCUE are preparing to bring their high-energy, voice-only performance at the Strathmore United Church on March 7 as part of the Arts on 817 concert series.

Alida Lowe, a member and manager of ONCUE, said the group is “thrilled to be a part of it,” adding that the invitation feels especially meaningful on a personal level.

“For me, actually, I grew up in Strathmore, so it’s kind of a fun coming home,” Lowe said. “I went to elementary school at Westmount. We’ll be right across the street from my old stomping ground.

“We think we’ve got a really great experience for people to come out and see, and we are happy to bring our music and our fun performing. We love being on stage. We love sharing what we do with an audience.”

ONCUE is the adult ensemble of the Youth Singers of Calgary, a long-standing arts organization that offers programs for ages three through adult. While the umbrella organization focuses on youth education, ONCUE itself is made up of adult performers.

“We are actually an adult choir,” Lowe explained. “We are a group of instructors and alumni and community professionals who really just love making music and love doing it in an organization where what we bring to the table supports youth education.”

That connection between professional performers and youth mentorship is especially visible through ONCUE’s director, Dean Lauderdale.

Lowe has been with the group for eight years and said the experience continues to be rewarding. The 11-member ensemble performs entirely a cappella, relying solely on their voices to create full, layered arrangements.

“We’re a fully a cappella group, so everything we do is just with our voices,” she said. “It’s a unique music experience that a lot of people may or may not have had the chance to sit in a performance like that, and we bring a great, energetic, really fun show.”

ONCUE performs in a wide range of venues, from large-scale productions to intimate community concerts.

“We do everything from a couple of shows with the full singers’ company at the Jubilee Auditorium to this kind of smaller venue,” Lowe said. “Around Christmas time, we do a lot of downtown office buildings. They’ll hire us to come and sing in their lobby for an hour, bring some holiday magic to people walking by for their lunch.”

While large venues offer full staging and a massive, combined cast, Lowe said smaller concerts like the Arts on 817 concerts provide a different kind of artistic opportunity.

“What we can do for a concert like this one is some of the music that just translates best to a captive audience in a space of beautiful acoustics, and we can just really show off the musicality of what we’re doing,” she said.

Also taking part in the evening is the choir from École Brentwood, under the direction of music teacher Lorelee Laycock, who will serve as the Opening Act. Continuing with the theme this season of the Opening Acts, the Arts on 817 has chosen a local group of talented performers to delight the audience and perhaps give them a taste of what to expect from the upcoming Strathmore Performing Arts Festival.

Laycock said her students are “very excited” to take part in the concert, even if some may not yet grasp the scale of the opportunity.

“To be honest, I think that a lot of them don’t really comprehend what a big deal this is,” she said. “Probably once they get in there and they realize, ‘Oh, this is the big time,’ then I think they’ll be really excited about that.”

For Laycock, being invited to perform in the community is always meaningful.

“Oh, it’s always wonderful to be asked to have your choir perform somewhere in the community,” she said. “Having people who live where we live getting to see our school choir is unique, because lots of times our choirs are seen mostly by their friends and family. This will be really fun to have them get to perform for members of the community.”

She added that the venue itself adds to the experience.

“The United Church is such a beautiful little venue acoustically, and it’s intimate, and I think it’ll be really great for the kids,” Laycock said. “We’re doing six songs total – it’s supposed to be about 25 minutes’ worth of material.”

With the concert taking place just over a week before festival season begins, Laycock said the timing could not be better.

“That’s only a week and a half before the festival, so we couldn’t have asked for a better preparation,” said Laycock.

The Arts on 817 starts at 7 p.m. sharp on March 7. Tickets can be purchased ahead of time from the Vault or online at www.smoreuc.com or at thevaultonline.ca/collections/tickets.

Fraud prevention

GOVERNMENT OF ALBERTA

Minister of Service Alberta and Red Tape Reduction Dale Nally issued the following statement for Fraud Prevention Month:

“No one deserves to be ripped off. Yet every day, swindlers look for new ways to take advantage of vulnerable Albertans. Whether it is a phone call, a text, an email or an online ad, fraudsters constantly adapt their tactics to exploit trust.

“For more than 20 years, Alberta’s government has recognized Fraud Prevention Month to raise awareness and give Albertans the tools they need to protect themselves. Education is our best defence. When people know what to look for, they are better able to recognize, reject and report fraud before it causes real harm.

“This year’s theme, Hidden Crime, highlights an important truth. Fraud is one of the most under-reported crimes, despite the serious financial and emotional toll it takes. As technology evolves, including artificial intelligence, scams are becoming more sophisticated. Staying informed and vigilant has never been more important.

“If you encounter a scam or any form of fraud, report it to your local police or to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre. If you suspect a business has committed a scam or unfair practice, contact Alberta’s Consumer Investigations Unit (CIU) at 1-877-427-4088. The CIU reviews consumer complaints for compliance with consumer protection and tenancy laws, and assesses and investigates potential violations, including serious cases that may involve criminal offences, such as fraud.

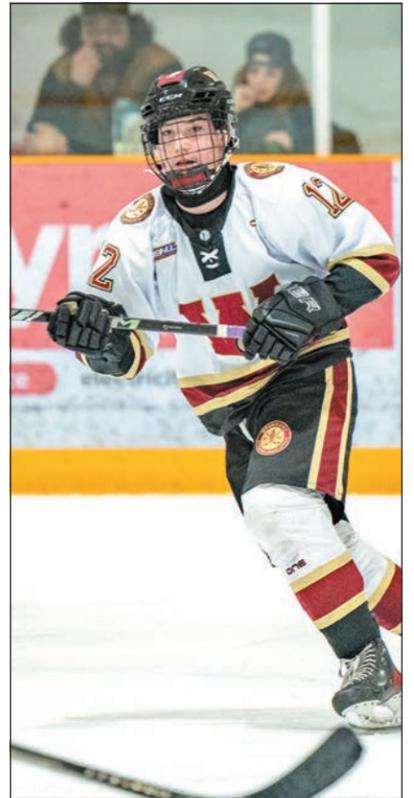

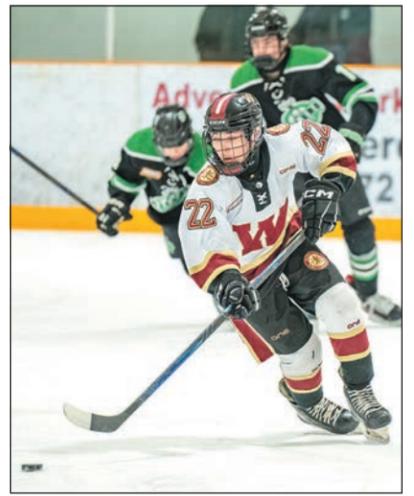

“As fraud tactics continue to evolve, staying informed is one of the strongest defences we have. This Fraud Prevention Month, I encourage all Albertans to explore the resources available online, share information with friends and family, and take proactive steps to protect themselves.”

Celebrating culture

The Calgary Catholic Immigration Society (CCIS) and Purposeful Youth Network International (PYNi) celebrated culture, community, and leadership during the Black Excellence, Rep Your Flag event on Feb. 28 at the local PYNi location. One of highlights of the event was the presentation of two community awards recognizing outstanding leadership and excellence. Michael Ajireloja (top photo) received the Youth Award, while Sunday Adeola (bottom photo) was honoured with the Adult Award.

Stepping up during tough times

CHANTELLE DE JONGE
Chestermere-Strathmore MLA

Albertans are known for stepping up when times are tough, and Budget 2026 reflects that same spirit. The Legislature has returned for the spring session with a budget built around a clear theme of focusing on what matters, responding to global uncertainty, rising costs, and rapid population growth with a steady, practical plan. It protects the services Albertans rely on, supports workers and families, and keeps our province strong through challenging economic conditions.

Budget 2026 invests in what matters most, including major improvements to healthcare. It expands capacity with more hospital beds, more healthcare professionals, and better access to services. The budget makes a record $7.7 billion investment in physicians – a 22 per cent increase – to support recruitment, training, and compensation, including $7.3 billion for physician services and $450 million for recruitment and education. These investments strengthen primary care, support specialists and surgeons, and help manage growing patient needs across Alberta. Additional funding in surgical capacity, mental health and addiction care, continuing care, and diagnostic technology further improves access and supports frontline teams.

In education, our government is making the largest education investment in Alberta's history to respond to rapid growth and rising classroom complexity. It provides $10.8 billion in operating funding – about $54 million per day – including support to hire 1,600 teachers and 800 support staff next year. Over three years, funding will grow to $11.5 billion, supporting more than 5,000 new staff. The budget also invests $1.8 billion for students with specialized learning needs, $560 million for enrolment growth, and $355 million to manage class size and complexity. Additional supports include early literacy and numeracy funding, student transportation, and curriculum renewal to help classrooms keep pace with Alberta's fast growing student population.

To keep Alberta's economy moving, Budget 2026 invests in skills training, workforce development, infrastructure, and industries that create long-term opportunity. Funding supports entrepreneurs, innovation, regional economic development, and growth in key sectors. A three year, $28.3 billion capital plan strengthens roads, transit, hospitals, post secondary facilities, and other critical infrastructure, supporting tens of thousands of jobs across the province.

Even as Alberta projects a $9.4 billion deficit – driven largely by global volatility and rapid population growth – the province remains in the strongest fiscal position in Canada. Alberta continues to have the lowest overall tax burden, the strongest GDP per capita, and some of the highest weekly earnings in the country. The budget takes a disciplined approach by focusing on priorities, controlling costs, and making responsible choices in a year when many families and businesses are also feeling financial pressure.

Budget 2026 also continues Alberta's long-term commitment to the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund. Our government has been steadily paying into the fund and maintaining a plan to grow it to $250 billion by 2050. The fund is expected to reach about $34 billion by the end of 2026/27, up from $31.5 billion the year before. By protecting and growing this fund, Alberta is setting aside wealth today so future generations can benefit from stable, long-term savings that support the province's financial strength for decades to come.

Budget 2026 is designed to help Alberta weather today's challenges while building a stronger future. By staying focused on what matters – better healthcare, stronger schools, good jobs, and the infrastructure that keeps communities growing – our government is taking steady, responsible steps forward. With careful fiscal management and a long term plan for stability, Alberta is positioning itself to remain one of the strongest and most resilient places in Canada to live, work, and raise a family.

Budget 2026 makes disciplined choices and takes decisive action to meet these challenges head-on. We remain committed to supporting people living in Alberta in the areas that matter most – like health care, education and our economy. With a total of $28.3 billion over the next three years, the 2026 Capital Plan addresses rising costs and rapid population growth, strengthening our province's infrastructure.

Fraudsters are targeting vendors of junior hockey teams

BBB RELEASE

Scammers are currently targeting vendors who work with junior hockey teams in the region asking for payments.

“This is a twist on an old scam,” says Mary O’Sullivan-Andersen, President and CEO of Better Business Bureau Serving Alberta and East Kootenay. “When mail was the primary tool for business this would have taken the form of a hardcopy (fake) invoice, now scammers use email. The result is the same – the invoice is fake and there is an attempt to defraud a business out of hundreds and, in some cases, thousands of dollars.”

The most recent example of this fraud are scammers targeting vendors who have a relationship with the Okotoks Oilers; a junior hockey team that is part of the British Columbia Hockey League.

“When a business receives an invoice, it should always be verified and then verified again,” says O’Sullivan-Andersen. “Scammers take advantage of people being in a hurry and failing to carefully review the information they are receiving.”

Tips to avoid the fake invoice scam

- Understand how your real invoices are delivered. Scammers may try to imitate companies you actually do business with, so make sure you know how all your legitimate billing processes work. Find out how and when invoices will be delivered, how payments will be made, and what happens when payments are overdue.

- Don’t be easily intimidated. Scammers love using intimidation tactics to make you pay without a second thought. They may even impersonate government agencies to add weight to their threats. Even if an invoice claims your payment is overdue and legal action will be taken if you don’t pay immediately, take some time to verify the claims before you pay.

- Create a procedure for inspecting incoming invoices. Choose a small group of employees to handle purchases, bill, pay, and receive shipments. Then, create a process where employees check that products and services were ordered and delivered before they pay an invoice.

- Train your staff. Give your staff training on your invoice inspection procedures and make them aware of fake invoice scams. Keep in mind that scammers are experts at imitating official agencies, so emphasize the need to double-check all incoming invoices.

- Encourage open communication. Make sure your employees feel comfortable approaching you if they have any concerns.

Obituary

SCHNEIDER, Anne (nee Buye)

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Anne Schneider (nee Buye). Anne passed away peacefully surrounded by her family on February 22, 2026, at the age of 96 years. Anne was born December 2, 1929, in Maple Creek, Saskatchewan. While at a baseball game, she met the love of her life, Ben Schneider. Together on the farm they raised their 2 boys and then surprise surprise...14 years later little Denise made her appearance and completed the family! Ben and Anne enjoyed being active members of the Fox Valley Community until they moved to Medicine Hat, Alberta in 1986. Anne will always be remembered for being the first to lend a helping hand, for her delicious recipes that included “a little of this, and some of that” and for her undying love of garage sales, cards and bingo. She fiercely loved her children and grandchildren and will be dearly missed.

Anne will be lovingly remembered by her two brothers, Alex (Irene) Andy (Esther); her sister Josie; her children Lyle (Sandy) Schneider and Denise (Cordell) Verweire; daughter-in-law Gwen Schneider; grandchildren Scott (Elizabeth), Chase (Stella), Simon (Lauren), Amanda (Andrew) and Krystal (Brent); 10 great grandchildren and hundreds of nieces and nephews. Anne was predeceased by her husband, Benjamin; her eldest son, Keith; her granddaughter Stacey; and her siblings Nick, Eva, Tillie, Alice, Rose, Edward and Pearl.

A Celebration of Life will be held at a later date. If friends so desire, memorial tributes may be made in Anne’s name to a charity of your own choice.

Notices coming out in February. Property assessment notices.

On February 18, 2026, more than 6,400 annual property assessment notices were mailed out, signaling the start of the 2025 Customer Inquiry Period, which wraps up in April.

The Customer Inquiry Period is an important time for property owners to check, compare, and review their assessment for accuracy, fairness, and equity.

When you receive your notice, there's a few things you should do.

- Review the details on your assessment notice.
- Check what makes up your property's assessment value and compare it with similar properties in your neighbourhood using our property search function, found at Strathmore.ca/Assessment
- Contact the Town's assessor, Wildrose Assessment Services, for one-on-one support by calling 403-343-3357. Their property assessment experts can answer most assessment related questions with no formal complaint fees required. To help address concerns, please have your latest assessment notice in front of you with the account number and validation group information ready.
- If you disagree with your property's assessment, you can file a formal appeal with the Assessment Review Board by the deadline stated on your latest property assessment notice. You can find information on this process at Strathmore.ca/Assessment

Bored? We can fix that. Join a board.

Boards and committees have always played an important role in our community. If you're looking for a way to make an impact, this is your chance to get involved. The Town is currently accepting applications for the following boards or committees.

- Assessment Review Board - 1 position open.
- Family and Community Support Services Advisory Board - 2 positions open.

For questions about Volunteer Boards and Committees, please email LSAdmin@strathmore.ca or call 403-934-3133.

Fourth Annual Food Drive. Feb 26 - Mar 6.

Over the past three years, this community has broken it's own record for amount of food donated to the Wheatland Food Bank. In 2023, residents donated 4,667 pounds of food. The total grew to 4,735 pounds in 2024, and in 2025, the drive collected an impressive 5,456.15 pounds of food.

Let's break the record for a fourth time.

The Strathmore Fire Department, joined by members from RCMP, FCSS, Operations, Wheatland EMS, and Municipal Enforcement, will be taking part in our annual food drive for Wheatland Food Bank.

This year's food drive runs from February 26th to March 6th. Volunteers will be dropping bags off at select neighborhoods on February 26th, and will return to collect filled bags on March 6th.

If you didn't get a bag but want to contribute, give the Strathmore Fire Department a call at 403-934-3022. Items can also be dropped off at the Firehall any day between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.
